Airport Manager's Report:

Here we are at the end of "daylight savings" and winter is looming any time now. As we prepare for that white stuff, we'll be finishing up with our winter storage checklist. Our November hours will also shorten up to 8:00 am to 5:00 pm. The shop will be mostly closed on weekends, and the flight school will remain Monday thru Friday with weekend flight instruction hours left up to your instructor. All aircraft rental will remain seven days a week as normal. This is a great time for all powered pilots to review winter flying procedures and weather knowledge. As always this time of year, call ahead to make sure your engine is properly preheated.

A huge "thank you" to Tim Bjork, one of our board members who recently stepped away from his position but will remain a key volunteer helping to maintain our facility. Your service on the board is greatly appreciated!

For those of you who don't frequent the airport and see the amount of traffic, both customer and new visitors, here is an interesting comparison. In October of 2020 we pumped 1700+ gallons of fuel. In October of 2021 we pumped 3200+ gallons. We are currently 1500 gallons ahead of the 2020 total, with two months to go. Also, 2021 will again be a record year of completed work orders for the shop.

We are planning to hold our 4th annual winter Private Pilot ground school, with the dates to be announced next month. We're putting together our student list, so just give us a call.

Thank you to everyone who's involved with making Stanton Airfield the special place it is. Have a Happy Thanksgiving!!
